The Paper

The Mudgee Guardian is the major source of local community news for the towns of Mudgee, Gulgong, Rylstone, Kandos and Dunedoo. It has fulfilled this role for more than 100 years.

Regularly publishing more than 50 pages a week, the paper focuses on issues which directly affect local people, and works hard at its emphasis on community news, and community involvement.

The Market

Mudgee is a picturesque town just 3.5 hours drive north west of Sydney which has become renowned for its unique mix of wine growing, culinary tourism and agriculture. The area's superfine wool is highly sought after both domestically and overseas. Produce from the Mudgee area is increasingly popular in the fiercely competitive Sydney markets. Vineyards which now surround the town produce the special and unique qualities which have seen well known wine companies like Orlando-Windham and Rosemount invest big dollars into the local wine industry. Each September, thousands of visitors flock to the town to take part in its Wine Festival. The other major event on the annual calendar is Mudgee Small Farm Field Days during July, which regularly attracts crowds in excess of 20,000 people. Its emphasis on education has been a draw card for both hobby and large scale farmers, and organisers have now established a permanent site called the Australian Rural Education Centre. The other main towns in the area are historic Gulgong, and Rylstone-Kandos, the home of the Wollemi National Park, and the now famous Wollemi Pine.
